

Explore the Evidence

Free online twilight series

Our regular, open-to-everyone, free of charge twilight series, designed to help busy teachers, support staff and school leaders to engage with, interpret and challenge educational research. All sessions will take place from 4:00 – 5:30pm online.

Monday 16 January	How and why should we engage with evidence?
Monday 30 January	Planning effective professional development
Monday 6 February	Pitfalls, red flags and challenges of evidence in education
Monday 6 March	The Ten Deadly Sins of Education
Monday 20 March	Creativity in education
Monday 22 May	Why is implementation so hard and what can we do about it?

Feedback from Explore the Evidence sessions:

"A brilliant session. So well paced, explained and thought-provoking. Will definitely have an impact on my practice"

"This was really good training, the best I have had for a while. It was refreshing to receive specialist SEND input from facilitators who are clearly very knowledgeable in their fields."

"The facilitator did a fantastic job at ensuring participants were included by managing the group discussion elements well. It was great to hear about the practical applications of the theory and to draw upon his – and the wider group's – knowledge. It was engaging and interesting – well done!"
